Monday Night at the Movies

Monday January 23: My Week with Marilyn 1, 4 pm, 7:15 pm

What matters is the performance by Michelle Williams. She evokes so many Marylins, public and private, real and make-believe. We didn't know Monroe, but we believe she must have been something like this. Roger Ebert/Chicago Sun-Times

Something moved me deeply watching Ms. Williams as the tragic Marilyn, illuminating the girlish joy, erotic glamour and self-destructive suffering of a public icon who was privately a bottomless pit of need. Rex Reed/New York Observer

It took a toll on Marilyn Monroe to look effortlessly buoyant on camera. Michelle Williams lets us see why. It's a great, soulful performance. Sit back and behold. Peter Travers/Rolling Stone

Williams locates a central truth, the contradictory allure of this utterly impossible woman - mercurial, vain, foolish, but also intelligent in some very primal way and achingly vulnerable. Mary F. Pols/Time Magazine

The proceeds from today's screenings will go to the Hamilton Out of the Cold Program.
